Hello,

In line with our Noise & Vibration Management Plan commitments, we are notifying you of ongoing activities on the transmission line.

In certain areas between now and the end of May where the construction crews encounter rock outcrops while installing the hydro poles, they may use charges to break apart the rock. Please see image below for general areas shown in orange highlight that charges may be used.

To mitigate noise, we are using a technique that will result in a “thud” sound. We do not anticipate this will affect noise levels in the area. The construction crews work on the transmission line between 6:00am and 6:00pm.

Please feel free to call or email me if you have any questions.
